Hero Honda Gets Approval For Hero MotoCorp

Hero Honda had just one hurdle left for its name change to Hero MotoCorp, which the company has now successfully overcome. The world's largest 2-wheeler company has got shareholders' approval to change its corporate name to Hero MotoCorp. The company has forwarded the approval to the Registrar of Companies for the final change. The Munjal owned company has the rights to use the Honda name in its communications till 2014, after which it can no longer use the name of the Japanese company. This change of name is part of a strategy in the company's transition from a Honda partnership to a non-Honda one.
