Ferrari has confirmed its entry into the Indian supercar market. The company will bring its complete range of sports cars in April, 2011. The Italian supercar major has tied up with Shreyans Group (the sole distributor of Porsche in India), which will be its sole distributor and will first showroom in Delhi followed by Mumbai. Ferrari will initially launch the 458 Italia, followed by the California in India. The company is expecting double digit sales in the country, owing to its growing fan following among people of India.
