2012 Honda Accord Launched In Romania

Honda Motors has unveiled the new face lifted version of their luxury sedan, the Accord in the country of Romania. Both the exteriors and the interiors have been restyled in the new Honda Accord. The entire front grille and the headlamps have been redesigned to make it look sharper than the existing Accord. The Romanian customers will be getting only one engine option, the 2.0L gasoline while the choice of a manual or automatic gearbox is definitely there.

The 2012 Accord's boot space has been reduced and the rear end styled to look more like a coupe. The rear glass window thickness has been increased by 0.9 mm to improve noise insulation. Sound absorbing materials have also been added at lot many places to improve the overall NVH aspect of the car. The suspension has also been re-tuned for better ride and handling characteristics. The Accord is being offered in two trim levels - Elegance and Executive. It comes with a top speed of 215 km/h and 0-100 km/h sprint in 9.3 seconds.
