2009 Honda City

Honda has launched the next generation Honda City in the Thai market today. The new City is certainly a step forward and Honda being Honda has done a fantastic job with the new City. The new City is expected to hit Indian shores by next month.

The new City comes with 185/55/16 Bridgestone Turanza's but the Indian version will get 14" wheels. The new City is longer at 4395 mm by 5mm, wider by 5mm and lower at 1470mm by 25mm compared to the City it replaces. The new City does away with the iDSI engine and is launched with all VTEC powerplants. The Indian version too will get a 100bhp VTEC engine. The new City will be priced Rs. 80000/- more than the current City.
