

Published based on Honda City Facelift Launch On 14th December

Honda City Facelift Launch On 14th December

Honda has officially confirmed the launch of the new City facelift for the 14th of December 2011. The City facelift is a mid-life minor change to the car, incorporating minor changes to keep the flagship Honda sedan looking fresh. The facelifted City will now feature LED tail lights, new bumpers, new grille, new alloy wheels and a new instrument cluster. The interiors will get slight revisions and the City will now have eco meter, which tells you if your driving in economy mode or not (a light foot on the accelerator yields higher fuel efficiency). Honda is said to have increased localisation on the 2012 City, so can we expect a slight price revision? Meanwhile those looking for a bargain can opt for the current City as dealers are offering mouth watering discounts to clear inventory.

[youtube:<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=R1PMIJ3e-sg> 540 375]

You can also find this article published on Honda City Facelift Launch On 14th December, and on the tag pages Honda City.