

Published based on Honda Debuts New 2012 Civic

Honda Debuts New 2012 Civic

The Honda Civic Si Concept coupe and Civic Concept sedan are making world debuts at the North American International Auto Show providing the first official glimpse at the styling direction of the all new, ninth generation 2012 model set to go on sale soon. As a new interpretation of the current Civic's one-motion mono-form shape, the upcoming, ninth-generation Civic conveys a more substantial appearance. The exterior styling of both Civic concept models showcases the sedan's and coupe's steeply raked windshields, wide stances and pronounced character lines along the profile. The lower character line on both models broadens toward the rear fenders. The Civic Concept sedan takes on a sophisticated presence with a front grille defined by crisp lines and a solid bar that integrates a chrome Honda emblem.

You can also find this article published on Honda Debuts New 2012 Civic, and on the tag pages Honda Civic.