2011 Hyundai Accent/Verna Spied

Hyundai is on a roll. The Korean company was once famous for copying designs from other manufacturers but now the table seems to have turned. After the successful debut of the new Sonata in the U.S. markets, the company is focusing its efforts on the next generation Accent/Verna and Elantra sedans. The 2011 Hyundai Verna takes cues the Sonata and looks like a mini-version of its elder sibling. The car will feature new generation powertrains and first for its segment features. The new Verna will surely give its competitors sleepless nights when it goes on sale in mid-2011.
