Mahindra showcased the Verito Electric vehicle at the 2012 Auto Expo. The Verito Electric is powered by REVA technology. It uses an 29 KW AC motor and can run upto 100 kms on a single charge. The gearbox is a single speed with reverse, forward, neutral and boost mode! It is a pure electric vehicle using a Li-Ion battery and is clutchless. Noise levels are extremely low and the on-board telematics give important information to the driver. Mahindra claims the Verito Electric has a fast charging port provision which enables it to charge in just 75 minutes. The normal charging time is 6 hours though. Top speed is just 86 kmph and the Verito Electric is scheduled for market introduction as soon as November 2012.

Mahindra had the complete SsangYong range on display as well along with the REVA NXR. The Navistar range of trucks were displayed too. From the Mahindra stable was the Xylo, Thar, Genio and XUV500. One of the XUV500 was painted in matte-yellow while the internals of the XUV too were on show. The body was cut into half to display the interiors, while the hood and tail gate were finished in fiber to enable show visitors to see what is inside the XUV500. The rear tyre and alloy wheel was cut into half to showcase the braking system of the XUV.
