While the next generation Maruti Swift is still around a year away from commercial launch, TMR has rendered the next generation iteration of the famous small Suzuki. Though the new version carries forward the design theme of the current one, it is evidently wider, taller and longer. The front end takes cues from Suzuki's new design language with the typical Kizashi grille whereas the rear is just a sharper version of the current car. We will reserve our comments till Suzuki pulls off the curtains on the new Swift at the Paris Motor Show.
