Mercedes-Benz stole the thunder at the 2012 Auto Expo, showcasing awesome products in a very exciting theme. The Mercedes-Benz stand had cars displayed both inside and outside. A Mercedes-Benz SLS AMG was positioned at such a strategic location, that it was visible from most parts of the road leading to its competitors. The S-Class Pullman was standing outside, giving visitors a glimpse of the huge length of this limousine. The GL-Class was parked on challenging off-road situations while the company bought the all new M-Class, unveiling it for the first time in the country.

Inside the Mercedes-Benz stall, there was the highly anticipated A-Class Concept and the F-Cell. A racing game was available to play on a half Formula 1 car. The SLS AMG Roadster along with the DTM C-Class were parked in the Mercedes-Benz stand as well. Then there was the SLS AMG GT3 racecar, which was hugging the ground with its high downforce low ground clearance setup. Car from the German automakers India lineup were present as well. This whole setup cost Mercedes a cool Rs. 20 crore (excluding prices of the cars on display).
