Nissan Micra Launch In July

Nissan will start selling its first small car in India from July. The company is on track to open their new factory in March with production commencing in May. The company said it planned to export the Micra from late 2010 and establish India as a global manufacturing hub. The Micra will help the firm tap the growing Indian car market, which is forecast to triple to six million cars from two million in a decade.
