Skoda To Showcase Fabia R S 2000 At Expo

Skoda plans to attract eye balls at the upcoming Auto Expo in January, 2012. The Czech automaker will exhibit its latest and hottest concept car, the Skoda Fabia R S 2000 at the biennial event. But what is this hot looking concept all about? Well for starters Skoda took their normal Fabia R S and sliced the roof up. Then the company fitted a rather widebody kit and slapped on 18-inch power coated alloy wheels on the car. But that is not all, the interiors were worked upon too and feature individual bucket seats with racing harnesses. The trim is made of carbon fiber. Power comes in from a 2.0-liter, twin-turbo unit (the most powerful Skoda engine yet) which produces 200 hp of power. Now this is indeed a nice way to make prospective Fabia owners salivate.
