

Published based on Tata Sales Decline In January 2009

Tata Sales Decline In January 2009

Tata Motors has said its total sales declined by 33% to 36,931 units in January 2009 from 54,796 units in the same month last year. The company sold 17,373 commercial vehicles in the domestic market during the month, down by 43 per cent compared to 30,530 vehicles sold in January last year.

Its domestic sales of passenger vehicles stood at 18,331 units in January 2009, 9% lower than 20,119 units sold in the same month last year, the company said in a statement. The company exported 1,227 vehicles in the month, down 70% compared to 4,147 vehicles in January 2008.

In the passenger vehicles segment, sales of Indica range stood at 11,433 units, about eight per cent lower than January 2008. The Sumo and Safari accounted for sales of 2,925 units, 40 per cent lower than the year-ago period. However, the Indigo range sales grew by 37% to 3,973 units.

You can also find this article published on Tata Sales Decline In January 2009, and on the tag pages Tata.