Toyota recently launched the facelifted Fortuner in Thailand. The 7-seater SUV now gets revised styling to make it look fresh along with more treatment of chrome on the exteriors. The alloy wheels design is new and the interior has been slightly refreshed. The instrument cluster has been redesigned and equipment levels have been increased with projector headlamps and Bluetooth connectivity debuting on the 2012 Toyota Fortuner. The engines remain unchanged and are the same 3.0-liter and 2.5-liter D4-D diesel units producing 163 bhp and 144 bhp respectively. The 2.7-liter VVT-i motor produces 160 bhp of power but it is only the 3.0-liter oil burner which is sold in India and will continue to do when the new Fortuner goes on sale early next year.
