2012 Toyota Fortuner Spied In Delhi

After Toyota introduced the Fortuner facelift in the International market it had to hit the Indian shores very soon and here it is. Spied in Delhi the new Fortuner Facelift in all its might draped in white is wearing a Prado like grille. The new Fortuner seems more matured and a part of the Toyota SUV family. Engine options are expected to be the same 3.0-liter masculine motor but the spy snaps show the presence of an autobox which is a welcoming alteration in the car. With the autobox in place the king of the segment will even cater to the niche market which looks forward for the Automatic version which currently is overshadowed by the Ford Endeavour. There are talks about the 4X2 version for the new Fortuner which will be priced lower to cater to a larger target audience.

The New Fortuner comes with a DVD touch screen system, new headlight, tail lamps, new design alloys, intercooler scoop, new bumpers and a few more things. We can spot this new Fortuner in the Auto Expo 2012 which will be held in January. Looking at the previous Fortuner there is no doubt this one will sell in volumes even in Tier II cities.
