Toyota has not been keen to admit about the arrival of the facelifted version of the Fortuner in India, as the company struggles to meet demand for its popular SUV. However, the Japanese automaker has secretly been testing the mammoth vehicle near its plant in Bangalore and YouTuber wicky3453 was quick to tape the car on the city roads. This is not the first time the 2012 Toyota Fortuner has made its appearance in India, it was earlier spotted in Delhi with an automatic gearbox.

However other than the small cosmetic changes to the exteriors and interiors, there is nothing much different in Fortuner facelift, which is expected to debut at the 2012 Auto Expo. The mechanicals remain untouched and the Fortuner will continue to be powered by the fantastic 3.0-liter D4-D oil burner which produces 170 BHP of power at 3600 RPM and 343 Nm of torque at 1400 RPM. A 2-wheel drive version could be launched as well. Expect a slight price hike with the updated Fortuner.
