

Published based on Hamilton On Pole Yet Again

Hamilton On Pole Yet Again

Lewis Hamilton snatched away pole from his Ferrari rivals yet again but this time at Spa, Belgium. The way Hamilton has given importance to qualifying and his consistency performance makes him the favourite to be this year's Formula 1 champion. I don't know what's wrong with Kimi. He hasn't been on the front row of the grid since quite a few races now.

Massa qualified second and McLaren's number 2 driver Heikki did a swift job of qualifying third. Now he only needs to get ahead of Massa and do his job and the championship is all Hamilton's. Common Ferrari get going and especially Kimi. Don't disappoint the millions of tifosi who support you like crazy. Who do you think is going to win the championship? I reckon Hamilton has it going for him.

You can also find this article published on Hamilton On Pole Yet Again, and on the tag pages F1.